4 November 2020

7:00-8:30 UTC

DC Child Online Safety: Lessons learned from the Pandemic: child rights and safety

Prior to the COVID-19 crisis, evidence on pattern of online offending, risks to children online, and on prevalence of different forms of online harm was already available however the circumstances created by this crisis seem to have exacerbated the vulnerability of children. The panel will analyse the takeaways of the crisis, how they are related to internet governance and also determine a way forward in relation to the online safety of children for future crisis management.

Policy questions:

1. What do we know about children's situation during the COVID-19 crisis and afterwards?
2. Do we have statistical evidence of increased online harm: numbers of cases of grooming, an increased amount of CSAM or self-produced materials as a result of grooming?
3. Has the hypothesis of more screen time leads to more exposure to risks been proven as correct during the crisis?
4. Have children themselves been aware of higher risks and f. e. infringement of their privacy by family members during quarantine?
5. Have children been able to benefit from the stimulus for digitisation faced during the crisis? What, if at all, has improved afterwards?
6. Which response mechanisms were adopted by agencies and sectors in charge of protecting children?

	7. What lessons should be drawn for the future? How can we prepare? https://www.intgovforum.org/multilingual/content/igf-2020-lessons-learned-from-the-pandemic-child-rights-and-safety
